

Orange Together

Roskilde Festival number 50 will be a fantastic return to a long-missed community in a new era.

Together, we create a festival city with a very special community which radiates strongly enough to take the lead and change the world. This is how it has been since the beginning, and this is how it will always be when you protect what we have together.

That is why we have formulated three dogmas that we ask you to keep in mind when you are at the festival site:

Respect the free space

You are a co-creator of the unique orange atmosphere. It's like a dream but it's a reality. Enjoy the freedom, forget about everyday life and explore the limits but remember the respect and protection of the community.

Respect each other

You meet people with different values, norms and conditions for participating than yours. No matter who you meet on your way, show respect for them and their limits. Roskilde Festival's community is equal to openness, curiosity and care across standpoints.

Respect the environment

Together, we take care of the world and our surroundings. We need the festival community to show the green way into the future. Leave the festival city as clean as you found it, sort your rubbish and take your camping equipment home; otherwise it ends up as environmentally harmful waste.

Let's be Orange Together.
